Mexican Dam Near Bursting At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Men and machinery waged a desperate fight against the clock and the weather today to try to prevent a makeshift earth fill Mexican dam from bursting and spilling 300 million gallons of water.

Steady rain and bitter cold Thursday night complicated the efforts of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers to lessen pressure on the crumbling dam at "Smuggler's Gulch" by draining water from the rain-caused lake.

Officials called the situation "critical." Bill Ericson, San Diego, resident engineer of the U.S. Boundary and Water Commission, who was placed in charge of the project by the Mexican government, said if the water level could be lowered by 20 feet it might prevent collapse of the 110-foot-high dam.

Four portable pumps brought here from Orange County were capable of removing water at the rate of 2,000 gallons a minute and a fifth pump could empty the lake at the rate of 3,000 gallons per minute.

The water level was only about 35 feet short of the top of the dam when the pumping began late Thursday night.

All civilians were evacuated from a threatened 2.5-square-mile area near the border between Mexico and the United States.

At least two U.S. Navy facilities and 25 farms were directly in the path of potential destruction. Officials earlier said a flood could cause several million dollars damage.

Spacemen Given Silver Mugs By Crew Of Wasp

ABOARD USS WASP (UPI) — New silver pewter drinking mugs will be added to the shelves in the Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford households as remembrances of their visit aboard the Wasp.

The men of the ship gave the mugs to the Gemini 6 astronauts during their visit to crew members Thursday in the Wasp's giant hangar deck.

Election Drive Winds Up In France Today

PARIS (UPI) — Campaigning for Sunday's runoff presidential election between Charles de Gaulle and leftist Francois Mitterrand drew to a close today amid charges of political opportunism and electoral fraud.

The two candidates were to make final 15-minute statements on nationwide television tonight at 2:30 p.m., EST as the official close of a contest that opened on a high tone of mutual courtesy and state-ments of position, but was ending on a sour note.

Premier Georges Pompidou, at a news conference Thursday, accused Socialist Mitterrand of being a political opportunist who backed the extreme right-wing before the war and the extreme left wing after it.

Mitterrand, 49, moving quickly to meet the attack, countered in a nationwide radio speech Thursday night with Atlantic Ocean Landing Is Set For 9:05 a.m.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Space officials gave Gemini 7 Pilots Frank Borman and James Lovell a "go" today to complete their 14-day orbital marathon despite fuel cell power troubles. They were set to make an Atlantic Ocean splashdown Saturday morning.

That possibility that the epic space flight might be cut short a day was raised Thursday when the pesky fuel cells showed signs of worsening.

But after a night-long look at the vital units, ground controllers decided they would hold up for another day and the "go-ahead" for 206 orbits was flashed to Borman and Lovell as they streaked into their 190th swing around earth at about 5:40 a.m. EST.

"The blue team is happy to give you a go for the big 207-1 (landing on the start of the 207th orbit)," said capsule communicator Charles Bassett.

"Fine," replied Borman.

Bassett flashed the word to Borman and Lovell on the 62nd anniversary of the Wright brothers' first airplane flight, fact he mentioned to the Gemini 7 crew.

At 7:13 a.m. EST, Borman and Lovell swung into their 191st orbit.

The Gemini 7 spacecraft was also having troubles with two of its maneuvering rockets, but the problem was not serious and the fuel cells were receiving most of the attention.

Space agency officials denied they were "gambling" on the troublesome fuel cell electrical power supply units. They said the fuel cells would carry through with plenty of margin. They also vigorously denied that Borman's obvious concern Thursday over the fuel cell problem indicated he wanted to cut the mission short and land today instead of Saturday.

"I think nothing means more to Frank Borman and James Lovell than to complete this mission as planned," said Astronaut Eugene Cernan at a midnight news conference.

In Good Spirits Borman and Lovell, from all indications, continued to remain sharp and in good spirits today.

If all goes as planned, the champion astronauts will fire their four powerful braking rockets at 8:28 a.m. EST Saturday and end their record-smashing cosmic journey with an Atlantic Ocean splashdown at 9:05 a.m. EST.

Gemini 7 will come down with every space record in the book, including the most glittering of all—the historic rendezvous Wednesday with Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford in Gemini 6.

Schirra and Stafford's perfect flight ended with a splashdown in the Atlantic Thursday and recovery by the carrier Wasp.

They were to be debriefed at Cape Kennedy today and Saturday and return to the space center Sunday.

The fuel cell problem worsened Thursday, and two of Gemini 7's eight thruster rockets also failed. But these were not considered essential to the completion of the mission, and other rockets would be used for positioning the spacecraft for re-entry.

No Re-Entry Pictures

Borman radioed, however, that the failure kept him from putting Gemini 7 into position to see and perhaps photograph the fiery re-entry of Gemini 6.

The fuel cell power system involves two cells, each with three "stacks." One of the six stacks had been working improperly all during the flight, and another started malfunctioning Thursday.

A space agency spokesman said after Hodge's statement that the spacecraft could complete its mission "powered down" on 15 amperes of power, and there was that much in the two weakest stacks still operating.

He added that even in the unlikely case that all power production stopped abruptly, there would still be 10 hours to prepare the spaceship for re-entry.

Wrangles Delay Deadline Race On Districting

LANSING (UPI)—The Christmas spirit took a holiday today as the beleaguered state Reapportionment Commission met in an attempt to agree on new state legislative districts before a Jan. 1 deadline.

The commission, racked by bitter partisan wrangles and faced with the threat of a law suit, sat down for the second consecutive day this week in an attempt to draft new state Senate and House districts.

The eight-member commission, which is termed bipartisan, was threatened with a law suit Thursday to challenge any districting plan it proposed based on the 1960 Federal census. The suit might also question the commission's authority to operate.

The threat was made after the commission — politely but firmly — rejected a demand that it scrap the five-year old Federal census as the official yardstick for determining population of the proposed new districts.

Legislators Protest

State Reps. Bruce Monks, D-Mount Clemens, and Richard A. Young, D-Deerborn Heights, told the commission any new apportionment plan should be based on more current population statistics.

"I believe it is a study in futility to try to get within a few percentage points of an ideal of population that no longer exists," Monks said.

Monks said his Macomb County district now comprises about 114,000 more persons than it did when the last Federal census was taken. On that basis, he said, the county's six-member delegation in the legislature should be increased by two.

Young said his Western Wayne County district now has about 85,000 persons, more than 15,000 more than 1960.

Use of the 1960 Federal census, although required by the state constitution, thwarts the "one-man, one-vote" mandates of the U.S. Supreme Court, the lawmakers contended.

The commission had decided in advance to reject the legislators' proposal—which had been initially broached in a brief filed with the commission last week by Rep. Marvin Stempien, D-Livonia, chairman of the House apportionment committee.

One commissioner, A. Robert Kleiner, threw the day-long meeting into a turmoil when he objected to a districting plan submitted by a Detroit non-partisan organization.

Cause of the fuss was a re-districting plan offered by Civic Searchlight, Inc., of Detroit, "a non-partisan fact-finding agency . . . to promote honest, economical and efficient government."

Kleiner, a Democrat of Grand Rapids, charged Searchlight as "masquerading" as non-partisan while fronting for the Republican party.

Walkout Threatened

Republican commissioner William A. Hanna of Muskegon, charging that Kleiner's remark had jeopardized any chance of agreement by the commission, began packing his briefcase to leave the room. He was restrained, however, by the Republican co-chairman, Wilbur M. Brucker of Detroit.

Brucker, flushed with anger, told Kleiner his remarks were "unworthy" of a commission member. Kleiner said he had not intended to suggest any of the Republican commissioners were part of the alleged conspiracy.

Monks and Young were subjected to intensive questioning about their population figures. They admitted that the figures, based on projections by various governmental agencies, could

Ambush Wipes Out Company Of Vietnamese

SAIGON (UPI) — A large force of Viet Cong guerrillas today all but wiped out a company of government troops in a clever ambush 22 miles northwest of Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman reported.

A Vietnamese company normally numbers about 180 men. They were surprised by a battalion of Communists—up to 600 men—who opened up with mortars, machine guns and small arms fire.

In Saigon itself, a terrorist tossed a bomb into the rear of a truck loaded with U.S. servicemen, wounding 12 of them, two seriously. The incident occurred near the suburban Tan Son Nhut airport, one block from the spot where four Americans were wounded Thursday when a grenade was tossed into a U.S. Army compound.

It also was disclosed that Communist MIG jets trailed U.S. Air Force planes on an attack over North Viet Nam but fled when spotted by the American airmen.

Alien Address Month Noted By Gov. Romney

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. George Romney has proclaimed January as "Alien Address Report Month in Michigan" and reminded non-citizens that they are required to report their address during the month.

"Address report cards may now be contained at any United States post office or immigration and naturalization service office in this state," Romney said.

Only exceptions to the reporting requirement are persons officially connected with international organizations of which the U.S. is a member, and those admitted temporarily as agricultural laborers.

Ideas To End Viet Nam War Invited By US

PARIS (UPI) — The United States is "open to any offers" by its European allies to aid in the anti-Communist war in Viet Nam, U.S. officials said today.

The officials said Secretary of State Dean Rusk's Tuesday appeal to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) council covered every kind of aid, ranging from ambulances and hospital supplies to outright military assistance including tanks and troops.

The officials called the first NATO reaction to the plea "predictable" and admitted it was not too encouraging.

"There certainly was no frenzy of applause," was the comment of one American source.

The comment coincided with unofficial reports that Russia is organizing a conference of Communist parties to coordinate aid for North Viet Nam, especially from the European satellites. There was no information on where or when the meeting will be held, but it was understood that Moscow has told the satellites to be ready to make supplies available for the Vietnamese Communists.

In his speech, Rusk bluntly told the NATO council the war the United States is fighting in Viet Nam is not just an American action, but that it could decide the fate of Europe also.

Rusk emphasized that if the United States backs out of its commitment to defend South Viet Nam from Communist aggression, neither the Soviet Union nor the Western Allies could be sure Washington would honor its European pledges.

Rusk's hard-hitting statement was backed up by the Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who warned that Communist China will have the means to hit Europe and the United States with nuclear rockets in two years.

Former Lansing Bank Official Killed By Car

EAST LANSING (UPI) — A former vice president of the East Lansing State Bank died Thursday evening after he was struck by a car while walking near his home here.

State Police said Henry Dietz, 78, was struck by a car driven by Bethany Stevens, 19, Durant, on M-78 and Harrison Road.

Miss Stevens said she struck Dietz, knocking him to the ground, but that another vehicle also struck the man and dragged him down the road.

State Police searched for witnesses who might have seen the accident or a second car involved in the mishap.

Freed And Fined

ASHTABULA, Ohio (UPI) — An Ashtabula man who served three days in jail for disturbing the peace was fined an additional $25 Thursday.

Police charged George Gilmore stole an officer's gloves from the counter in the city police station on the day of his release.

Happy Astronauts Fly Home After Space Epic

ABOARD USS WASP (UPI) — Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford—two happy, healthy astronauts—flew to Bermuda today from the prime recovery ship Wasp.

Wet Concrete Buries Workers

MONTREAL (UPI) — Crews with jack-hammers and picks drilled and hacked through mounds of hardened concrete and bent steel today, searching for two men missing and believed killed with five others Thursday in the collapse of 1,600 tons of wet concrete used in the construction of a railway overpass.

Five workmen were killed when the overpass roof crashed 25 feet to the floor. Two other men were injured critically.

The missing workers were believed killed and buried in the debris.

About 18 men were working atop the overpass when scaffolding, steel support beams and quick-dry concrete that had been poured four hours before came slamming downward.

About 125 construction workers, Montreal police and firemen and volunteers rushed to the overpass to try to rescue the trapped workers.

Famous Tenor Tito Schipa Dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tito Schipa, one of the great Italian operatic tenors, died here Thursday night. He was 75.

A spokesman at Wickersham Hospital where the retired singer was taken a few days ago said that Schipa died of a cardio-circulatory failure arising from diabetes complications.

The tenor's son, Tito Schipa Jr., said in Rome he understood his father's body would be cremated Saturday and the ashes taken to Italy for burial.

Mobs Stage Orgy In Santo Domingo

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — The rioters blocked streets leading into their area of the city with barricades improvised from garbage cans, automobiles and the wreckage of smashed store fronts. In many cases, the barricades were set on fire.

The seizure of the downtown area climaxed a day of rioting during which a U.S. Army truck was burned by the mobs, which were exhorted by Communist street-corner orators to "fight . . . the Yankee invaders."

A U.S. Army spokesman said no American soldiers were injured.

Gas-masked U.S. troops with bayonets fixed used "riot control" gas to disperse one mob early in the rioting, but the attack was not pressed home.

Sporadic rifle fire echoed throughout the city. There was no immediate report of gunshot casualties.

In one of the most elaborate pranks in campus annals, five youths succeeded in getting a 450-pound pig—which was not housebroken—into an East Akers Hall elevator that had been out of service for three weeks, police said.

A notebook containing details of the plot was found at the campus livestock barn, where both the pig and the feed were taken last Friday. The notebook included diagrams on how the students used "ether" to put the pig to sleep, wrap it in a blanket, and carry it to the building where elevator panels were removed. The pig-in-the-blanket was then inserted into the elevator and the panels put back on.

The notebook led to five young persons who, police said, admitted the prank and said they did it to dramatize their unhappiness at having to walk up and down stairs while the elevator remained idle.

No criminal charges were filed, but the five were turned over to the dean of students who may put them to work cleaning up the soiled elevator.

Death Toll 1965

EAST LANSING (UPI) — State Police provisional traffic figures showed today that 1,965 persons have lost their lives on Michigan's streets and highways so far this year, compared with 2,010 for the same period in 1964.

Big Pig Rides MSU Elevator

EAST LANSING (UPI) — Smoldering resentment against climbing stairs was the motive for the "case of the pig in the elevator," Michigan State University police reported Thursday.

No formal medical tests were scheduled today, but the Gemini 6 crew faced another tilt table test for heart rate and blood pressure readings after their arrival about noon EST at Cape Kennedy.

Joseph Stegall, NASA technical debriefer, said he would begin formal sessions today at Cape Kennedy with Schirra and Stafford to discuss the Gemini 6 flight. More of these debriefing sessions were to follow after the astronauts fly to Houston Sunday.

The astronauts promised "some fairly spectacular photographs" from their flight, Stegall said, including motion pictures of Gemini 7 tumbling in space as it circled the earth.

'Operation Santa Claus' Probes Christmas Spirit

By DAVE ANDREWS

Dear Santa Claus: "Something has got to be done about the way Christmas is celebrated from the Friday after Thanksgiving up until Christmas eve . . ."

"I think you've been duped into the Christmas commercialism . . ."

"I'm wondering just how much of the real meaning of Christmas we have still retained in our world of tinsel and glitter . . ."

The words above were written in letters to Santa Claus by Holy Name High School students and faculty in an effort to take a deeper look at the Spirit of Christmas in those holiday hours.

In essence, the responses asked, "Will the real meaning of Christmas please stand up?" "The purpose of our examination was not to destroy a traditional Christmas image for its own sake," said Br. Jude Michael, F. S. C. "Rather, it was to stimulate some creative thinking about the true spirit of Christmas, centering the thought around the symbol that society has adopted as representing the spirit of Christmas—Santa Claus."

"We were happily surprised to see the initial skepticism about such a project melt away before a serious reflection on the Santa Claus symbol," he continued. "We were impressed with the concern shown for bringing Santa Claus to the needy throughout the area and the world."

Students and faculty members wrote letters to Santa Claus, using the basic premise if I were Santa, what would I do?

Here are excerpts from some of them:

Chris Erickson, junior: "Since your legend has grown from the days of St. Nick in the third century, tell me, what ever happened to the thought more than the price of a gift."

Sister Annabelle, librarian: "We get so busy in the hustle and bustle of preparations both inside and outside the home we have no time left to dwell on the true meaning of Christmas—and what is Christmas if we leave the Christ out of it? Will you help the world to put Christ back into Christmas, Santa?"

James Groos, junior: "Christmas has changed from the celebration of Christ's birthday to a day of getting and giving gifts. How would you like it, Santa, if on your birthday no one gave you any gifts, but exchanged gifts among themselves . . . The Christmas season should be spent in giving some thought to the birth of Christ."

Bob Brisco, junior: "This year, Santa, I'm going to ask you to do something different. I would like you to change your route . . . taking a drive behind the Iron Curtain and while you're there give hope to the people that they someday may have freedom. Also take a trip around to the poverty-stricken countries and give the people there some help."

Sherry Moreau, junior: "The real meaning of Christmas isn't around us. It's all turned into a big, commercial drive for the stores . . . Charge it, pay later, borrow . . . make it your best and biggest Christmas . . . Everyone has forgotten the real meaning of Christmas—the birth of Christ and the time of rejoicing over it. Santa Claus, all I ask is for a Merry Christmas like the Lord wanted us to have and put the commercial side of Christmas where it belongs."

Tom Cassidy, sophomore: "Instead of the usual things you bring us, could you please change your tactics this year? First of all for those poverty-stricken people in our cities, help them to stay on the right path in their fight to live. Secondly, could you guide our world leaders in finding a solution to the War in Viet Nam. Third, for those who suffer because of a different shade of complexion, give them the strength to cope with the unjust, agonizing whities . . . I also ask that you try to breed morality into economics and law, producing a racial justice. And for all of us, in general, help us to endure whatever sacrifices we are called upon to make to defend our freedom from the night of communism. And as Americans let us not rely only on the gold in our vaults, but on the iron in our blood."

Andre Sinnaeve, former resident of Escanaba, died at the family residence at 947 McArthur Drive, Manitowoc, Wis., at 1 a. m. Thursday. Death was caused by a heart attack. He was 52 years old.

He was born in Belgium on Oct. 16, 1913, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Theophile Sinnaeve, and came to the United States at the age of six with his parents. The family settled at St. Nicholas in Delta County.

The former Ethel Yeaton and Mr. Sinnaeve were married on Sept. 1, 1927. They moved to Manitowoc from Escanaba two years ago. He was employed there by the Mirro Aluminum Co.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, Jerry and Daniel in Manitowoc; six daughters, Mrs. Jacob Frizzell of Escanaba, Mrs. John Mills, Mrs. Melvin Erickson, Miss Joan, Miss Mary Ann and Miss Cindy at home; four brothers, Oscar of Manitowoc, Jule and Julian of Escanaba, and Cyril of Gladstone; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Antonetti of Iron Mountain and Mrs. Matha Kehler of New Jersey; and eight grandchildren.

The body is at the Pfeffer Funeral Home in Manitowoc where funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday with Mr. Warren Piper of the Jehovah Witnesses officiating.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 3 p. m. Friday. Burial will be in Knoolwood Memorial Gardens at Manitowoc.

Seney Refuge Offers Fishing

SENEY — The Seney National Wildlife Refuge will be open again this year for ice fishing and spearing.

This winter, as in past years, all refuge pools will be open to fishing from Jan. 1 through Feb. 28. Access is available through the headquarters road or the sub-headquarters road south of Germfask and the Driggs River Road 8 miles west of Seney. The roads into A, C and M pools in Unit II and C pool in Unit III will be plowed for the opening. Travel by snowmobiles is permitted along established roads, trails and dikes.

Northern pike are found in all the pools and good numbers of perch are also present.

State fishing regulations apply to all ice fishing and spearing on the refuge. In addition to these, refuge regulations prohibit the use of minnows for fishing. However any other live bait or artificial lures may be used.

Information is available at the refuge office on Highway M-77 between Germfask and Seney.

Updike Named Biologist For Seney Refuge

SENEY — Gerald H. Updike, Holt, Mich., started duty as biologist for the Seney National Wildlife Refuge on Nov. 21.

On June 21 he was employed as a wildlife aide at Seney. His main duties were assisting with the biological program, public relations and general maintenance work. Prior to his employment at Seney he worked as a range aide with the Bureau of Land Management in Montana and Wyoming.

Updike attended high school in Holt, received an A.A.S. degree from Jackson Junior College, Jackson, Mich., and a bachelor's degree in wildlife management from Michigan State University. He also took one year of graduate studies at Montana State University.

He will fill the position in a trainee capacity which was vacated by the transfer of Glen A. Sherwood to the Northern Prairie Wildlife Research Station, Jamestown, N.D. He will be responsible for the biological program at Seney Refuge.

Updike resides on the refuge with his wife, Marcia, who is teaching school in Germfask.

D.U.S. Makes Final Appeal For Funds

Robert Barron, director of the Delta United Services drive, made a final appeal for contributions today.

"This is our last call on the Over The Top campaign," he said.

The drive, which has been continuing in Delta County for more than two months, has collected over $40,000 to support nine public service agencies. Goal for the drive, based on agency budgets for next year, was $63,000.

Barron urged residents who might have been missed in the commercial, professional, industrial or door-to-door campaigns to use the blank in the Daily Press to mail their contributions.

Bar Will Assist Indigent Clients

To assure highest standards of legal service to the public under the Economic Opportunity Act, the State Bar of Michigan, in a resolution adopted Dec. 15 declares that it is the responsibility of the organized bar to take any necessary action to make certain that legal programs under the act are initiated, sponsored, implemented and controlled by the bar.

John S. Clark of Petoskey, president, said that the bar has long acknowledged its responsibility to make legal services available to all who need them, and that the State Bar in particular has been a leader in discharging this responsibility.

The resolution states that "the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 provides for cooperative programs with state and local agencies through which various services, including legal services, may be rendered to persons of low incomes who need advice and assistance, and further, the fact that freedom and justice have flourished only where the practice of law is a profession and where legal services are performed by trained and independent lawyers."

The resolution further declares that "the State Bar of Michigan reaffirms its deep concern with the problem providing legal services to all who need them, including indigents, and to persons of low income who, without guidance or assistance, have difficulty in obtaining access to competent legal services at reasonable cost."

Besaws Admit Bank Robbery; Wait Sentence

GRAND RAPIDS UPI — A man and wife captured a few hours after a bank robbery in Escanaba pleaded guilty Thursday before Federal Judge Raymond R. Starr and were remanded under $25,000 bond to await sentence.

They are William Besaw, 31, and his wife, Delores, 31, who are charged with the $3,017.82 robbery of the First National Bank in Escanaba on Dec. 2.

The Besaws were captured by Escanaba police a few hours after the robbery. He was apprehended while walking on an Escanaba street, and she was taken into custody in a bar.

They will be sentenced in U. S. District Court here on Dec. 29. They were unable to furnish bond.

Mrs. Besaw, reportedly the mother of three children by a former marriage, was from Auburn, Wash. Authorities at first identified her as Delores Hansen.

Besaw is a native of Kaukauna, Wis., and had lived on the West Coast at Astoria, Ore. The couple told officers in Escanaba after their arrest that they had married in Reno, Nev., on Aug. 22, 1965.

They had resided in Escanaba since Nov. 17, living at a motel. Mrs. Besaw had been employed as a waitress in a bowling alley at Escanaba until a few days before the robbery.

The robbery of the First National Bank was at 11 a. m. Dec. 2. Mrs. Besaw entered the bank and ordered teller Mrs. Sally Farrell: "Don't say nothing, just give me all you got."

Mrs. Farrell handed over

Romney Names Medicare Unit

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. George Romney has named the State Department of Social Services as the main state agency to administer the new federal "Medicare" program.

In an executive order, Romney also picked the Department of Public Health to establish, maintain and certify standards for participating hospitals and other health facilities and named the Department of Mental Health to perform the same functions for mental hospitals and psychiatric units.

A copy of the order was sent to John W. Gardner, secretary of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

VFW Sponsors Campaign To Aid Invalids

Homes in Delta County where there are invalids are offered the assistance of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Hiawatha Post, No. 2998, in supplying free loans of hospital beds and wheel chairs.

The VFW Post headquarters is at 904 Sheridan Road.

"This equipment is made available to residents of the Delta County area for free home use for anyone sick, helpless or disabled," said Post Commander Ernest Brice.

Residents when called upon will be shown an introductory letter signed by the Post officers, to eliminate the possibility of misrepresentation by unauthorized persons. Donations are not to be solicited or accepted, it was emphasized.

In the annual equipment program, the VFW is asking cooperation in its magazine campaign, which helps further the community project.

Other officers of the Hiawatha Post are John Anzalone, adjutant; Vern Sturdivant, senior vice commander; and Llewellyn Larson, junior vice commander.

Sly Old Santa Asks For Dimes

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — A sly Santa Claus, who gave children his Christmas list instead of listening to theirs, will get out of jail Christmas Eve.

Police said Robert Fraley, 41, of Paintsville, Ky., was acting as a Santa for charity in Dayton, Ohio, but left, still in uniform, to plead his own cause on the streets of Springfield.

"Give old Santa a dime so he can have a good Christmas," Fraley allegedly asked youngsters.

Primrose Gifts Welcomed Here

William Primrose of Milwaukee, formerly of Escanaba, whose benefactions to schools and for scholarships have been outstandingly generous through the years, is making this a happier Christmas for the people in three communities of this area.

Announcement of his latest gifts was made today through Atty. Nicholas P. Chapekis of Escanaba.

Holy Name High School's William Primrose Scholarship fund will receive $1,500.

Gladstone High School will receive $500 from the Edward Primrose Scholarship, a memorial to Mr. Primrose's late brother.

Manistique High School has been given $500 for the William Primrose Scholarship fund.

The John A. Lemmer School will get $200 for one deaf room scholarship for 1966 to assist handicapped children. Special education, including oral deaf rooms, of the Area Schools, are located in the Lemmer School in Escanaba.

The Delta County Historical Society will receive $100 as a gift to its Museum Expansion fund. The Society is accumulating funds to enlarge the Museum building.

The "Christmas gifts" will be distributed immediately in advance of the holiday and the recipients — and others who may wish to express their appreciation to Mr. Primrose — will address cards to him at P. O. Box 1797, Milwaukee, Wis.

Walter Myers Dies Thursday

Walter Myers, 57, of 414 S. 8th St., died at his home at 1:45 p. m. Thursday after a long illness.

He was born March 17, 1908 in Hardwood and came to Escanaba in 1941. He was a member of St. Anne's Church and of the Veneer Workers & Joiners Local 3168. He had been employed at the Birds Eye Veneer Co. from 1942 until his retirement a year ago because of ill health.

He was wed to the former Eva Murray June 10, 1943 in St. Anne's Church. Also surviving are one son, Gary, of Escanaba; one daughter, Gail, of Rochester, Minn.; two sisters, Mrs. Lloyd (Elsie) Robinson of Escanaba and Mrs. Antone (Joyce) Triceak of Two Rivers, Wis.; three brothers, Henry, Mose and James, all of Escanaba.

The body is at the Degnan-Crawford Funeral Home where friends may call on Sunday from 3 to 9:30. Parish prayers will be said at 8 p. m. and funeral services will be held Monday at 9 a. m. in St. Anne's Church with the Rev. Stephen Mayrand officiating. Burial will be in the Foster City Cemetery.

Mrs. L. B. Sanders Of McMillan Dies, Services Monday

ANN ARBOR—Mrs. Louis B. (Mary Elizabeth) Sanders, 50, of McMillan, died this morning at Bixby Hospital, Adrian, Mich.

Mrs. Sanders was born March 4, 1915, in Toledo, O., and had lived in Ann Arbor from 1933 through 1945. Since that time she and her husband had owned and operated Camp Timber Line at McMillan.

She attended the Episcopal Church at Newberry and was a member of the Eastern Star Lodge at Newberry and a charter member of the White Shrine Lodge, Sault Ste. Marie.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Tressler of Ann Arbor; one brother, Glenn Underhill of Ann Arbor, and three sisters, Mrs. Chelsea Weaver of Coldwater, Mrs. Robert L. Miller of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Darrell Gunn of Ypsilanti.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Monday from the Staffan Funeral Home in Ann Arbor with the Rev. Richard Cockrell officiating. Burial will be in Washtenaw County Cemetery.

Holiday Mail Peak Passes

It is urgent that any remaining Christmas mail be sent out over the weekend, Escanaba Postmaster James E. Pryal stressed today. To facilitate mailings the Escanaba post office will remain open until 6 p. m. through Saturday, Dec. 18.

In the last three weeks, the nation has witnessed more people mailing gifts, cards and letters than ever before.

The postmaster said that across the nation every piece of Christmas mail that can possibly be delivered will reach its destination on time. However, at this time of the year, the strain on transportation facilities and the unpredictability of weather can mean unexpected delays.

Pryal suggested that mailers consider the use of air mail and special delivery, especially for out of town mail.

He noted that holiday schedules will be in effect on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 25 and 26. Although Christmas falls on a Saturday and many business firms will be letting their employees off Friday, a sufficient number of postal workers will remain on duty to see that all Christmas mail entering post offices in time for delivery will reach its destination. Only special delivery and perishable mail will be delivered on Christmas Day.

The Escanaba postmaster noted that the use of ZIP Code has increased significantly over last year and that most people mailed early.

The local peak day was Wednesday, Dec. 15, when the local office cancelled 42,000 pieces of out-going mail. However, there still is an extremely heavy volume of mail to be delivered, he reported.

Rock

Miss Betty Lindstrom, Falls River, Mass., arrived Saturday to visit with her mother, Mrs. Clara Lindstrom for three weeks.

Mrs. Clara Lindstrom, Betty and Ronnie attended the birthday party at Harvey in honor of Mrs. Edward Lindstrom. Sylvester Rajala and George Rogers left Wednesday to spend the holidays in Detroit.

Cooperative Plan:

Community And School Program Is Encouraged

Creation of a study committee and general agreement that it is desirable to have a cooperative community and school program in Escanaba were products of a discussion meeting of City Council and Area School Board members meeting Thursday night in the City Hall.

Significant is the consensus that the facility most needed is a public swimming pool, which would be attached to the Area Public High School.

The study committee will be composed of: Mayor George Rusch representing the City Council, Trustee Roland Collins of the School Board, City Manager George Harvey, School Superintendent Luther Barrett, and a fifth member to be selected by the Recreation Commission.

The responsibility of the committee will be to advise the City and the Schools on methods of implementing the proposed community school program, whose objective is an even more extensive use of public school facilities for the benefit of the people of the area.

The meeting Thursday night was conducted by Mayor Rusch and attending besides those named to the study committee were:

School Board members Carlton Olsen, Mrs. Clara Mosenfelder, Forrest Henslee and Kenneth Buckland; Councilman Harold Vanlerberghe, Glenn Moreau and H. George Nelson; and Dr. Alfred Gossan of the Recreation Commission.

Prefacing the discussion were reports in writing from Supt. Barrett, Mayor Rusch and Dr. Gossan, who had attended a workshop meeting of the community school program at Flint on Oct. 27-29.

The three men were in substantial agreement on all main points relating to a strengthening of the community school program in Escanaba. It was pointed out that Escanaba already has a well-developed adult educational program; recreation activities are held in the Webster and d Lemmer school, and there are some activities of the City Recreation Department in the schools.

Employ Director
There was agreement that details will have to be worked out but, in the words of Supt. Barrett: "The task is not insurmountable. I feel that such a program would benefit the children and their parents, the City, and the schools."

The employment of a Director of Community Schools, trained and meeting standards which would qualify Escanaba for funds from the Mott Foundation, is recommended. This person would serve also as city recreation director.

Barret recommended that: The city continue its annual appropriation for the recreation program, supplemented by an annual appropriation from the Board of Education with help expected from the Mott Foundation.

"The entire program would be administered by the school district," he continued. "All schools in the district would

Legion Auxiliary Christmas Party

BARK RIVER — The Rheanne-Knauf American Legion Auxiliary held their annual Christmas party Monday night in the community hall with an exchange of gifts.

Mrs. Betty Olson, Mrs. John Krause and Mrs. Dan Levesque went to Iron Mountain to assist in the Gift Shop at the Veterans Administration Hospital on Tuesday, Dec. 7, and took with them the gifts from this unit to the patients.

In keeping with the "Operation Show Your Colors" the auxiliary will obtain a supply of little American flags to encourage people to wear colors in support of the military force in Viet Nam.

Frank Adams, Leo Knauf, and Hector Larson of the local Legion made venisonburgers for lunch which were served by Mesdames, Joseph Pach, Edward Motto, William Peltier and Betty Olson.

Teaching Gun Safety

Every September and October Paul V. Challancin of Marquette, regional information officer for the Michigan Conservation Department, puts his show on the road. It's a series of one-day stands performed in school auditoriums and gymnasiums across the Upper Peninsula.

The one-act drama has no title, but it might be called "How To Go Into the Woods and Come Out Safely." The cast consists of Challancin, assisted by a couple of students recruited from the school system. The shows are presented in every school in the Upper Peninsula once every three or four years, so that practically every high school student catches one of the performances before he graduates.

The theme of course is hunting safety, and Challancin demonstrates how to avoid gunfire accidents and gives his student listeners tips on such matters as using a compass and what to do in case the hunter becomes lost. Sportsmen's clubs and schools agree that it's been a beneficial contribution, and Challancin cites statistics to show that accidents among younger hunters who have been exposed to the hunting safety shows have decreased since the program was begun.

Now, it appears as though voluntary programs such as the one conducted by Challancin will be replaced by a mandatory hunter safety program for youths under 17 throughout the state. Strong support for a program requiring hunter safety training prior to issuance of licenses to youths under that age was voiced at this week's monthly meeting of the Michigan Conservation Commission in Lansing.

"The state now is ready to go into a mandatory program," Warren Cheek, assistant director of training for the National Rifle Association of America, told the commission, "and the association will cooperate as far as possible." By cooperating, Cheek meant providing training materials and undertaking the training of instructors from the Michigan Conservation Department staff.

According to Cheek, the mandatory program has cut hunting accidents more than voluntary programs have. He said 37 states and four Canadian provinces are taking part in such programs under the guidance of the association.

John Anguilm, former Marquette resident who now is chief of the Conservation Department's law enforcement section in Lansing, said that since voluntary programs have been in effect in Michigan from 1960, more than 75,000 people have been trained in hunter safety. Hunting accident statistics bear out the need for a compulsory program, he said.

The Houghton Rod & Gun Club has long urged a mandatory hunter safety program and every year has succeeded in getting the Northern Michigan Sportsmen's Association to endorse such a program.

Not everyone is convinced the program is effective. Critics claim that it has not succeeded in materially reducing hunting accidents and does not warrant the cost and effort. Even so, the mandatory program appears to have more supporters than detractors.

We would look askance at issuing a driving license to a 17-year-old who did not have any driver training. Firearms can cause accidents fully as serious as automobile accidents, and it seems perfectly logical to require training in their use before hunting licenses could be issued to youths. The program certainly merits a trial in Michigan.

England, Too!

England has a colored population of less than two per cent, compared with more than 15 per cent for the United States. The best estimate of the total number of colored persons in Great Britain is 800,000, of which about half are from the West Indies, 150,000 from India, 120,000 from Pakistan and the remainder from Nigeria, British Guiana and other Commonwealth nations.

Small as it is, the total is far greater than it was a decade or so ago. The relatively heavy increase in number of colored persons on the island can be traced to the 1950's, when England was confronted with a labor shortage and attracted a rather heavy immigration of colored workers, even going to the extent of recruiting West Indians to come to London to work for the city transportation system.

Since then, even with its small percentage of colored people, England has encountered instances of racial disturbances. The most dramatic manifestation of this was in the Notting Hall disturbances of 1958. But more subtle instances of racial troubles are evident in the fields of housing, education and public accommodation. Matters have reached such a state, in fact, that the Labor Party last August issued a White Paper calling for stringent restrictions on immigration.

"Among people in England who are working for equal treatment for colored immigrants, the word 'deterioration' is often used to describe the events of the past year, and there is a general pessimism about making a great deal of progress in the present political atmosphere," Calvin Trillin writes in the Dec. 4 issue of the New Yorker in a report on "Color in the Mother Country."

"They read news reports that a housing-development builder says he will not sell houses to colored people, or that the chairman of the police federation says that the men on the force will demand consultation before the country can take such a serious step as appointing a colored policeman, or that a medical officer says that having immigrants remain in their own neighborhoods for five or 10 years serves the function of preventing the exotic diseases they carry from spreading to the host community—and some of them talk about a drift toward racism with no check in sight."

Trillin emphasizes the British state of mind that insists, for the most part, that the English are racially tolerant. And, of course, they are—in comparison with the average white resident of the American Deep South or of South Africa. But, even with its comparatively tiny colored population, England already has experienced racial difficulties, there already are Englishmen who purport to be members of the Ku Klux Klan, the government has become alarmed over the situation and evidences of racial tensions seem to be mounting.

England is embarked on a new social era brought on by the influx of colored people after World War II. This has triggered racial problems, which, while small when set against racial problems elsewhere, can only become magnified unless something is done to ameliorate them. England has the time to meet the problem and solve it without subjecting the nation to the costly perils of prejudice that have developed elsewhere in the globe.

"This country could become a tolerant multi-racial community," Trillin quotes an enlightened Englishman. "The tragedy is that we seem destined to take the road to Harlem."

"A Few More Billion and We've Got It Made!"

Powers Expand

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

Recent events in aluminum, steel, copper, shipping, the railways and in the schools make it clear that in the past 20 years or so the White House indirectly has acquired a trunkful of new powers.

These new powers were not directly provided to the president by the Constitution. They were not intentionally given to the president by Congress.

They are, rather, powers he has acquired as by-products of dollars and contracting and allocation authority voted by Congress for entirely different purposes.

A president with imagination, widespread government know-how and determination can use these "tools" for a variety of objectives for which they were not intended. He can even deny he is using them for these "other purposes."

He can impose his will on wide areas of the economy and for objectives that greatly affect our personal lives.

He can, for example, use new indirect powers to influence prices, profits, wages, hiring, managing and firing policies and what local city and county schools teach. He can decide that some firms will grow and others decline.

The multibillion dollar stockpiles were set up so that the United States wouldn't be caught short of basic materials in a major war.

By selling or refusing to sell materials from the stockpiles a president can force prices down or up and thus regulate company profits.

The multibillion dollar defense and space budgets were voted to keep the United States safely ahead of Communist Russia.

But a president can use this multibillion-dollar-a-year contracting power to give or refuse contracts to major companies as a tool to force these firms or their unions into line. By selecting areas where new contracts were let or new government facilities built, a president could wipe out the prosperity of one community and create prosperity in another.

Antitrust laws were voted to prevent monopolies from harming the public and small businesses.

But at some future date a president's underlings conceivably could threaten an antitrust investigation against a large firm which refused to cooperate in a government program—say a program to roll back prices. A firm could be threatened with a study of its tax returns.

Since, even for innocent firms, the cost of gathering evidence and conducting a defense might be very costly, the temptation to go along with a president could be overpowering.

Congress voted billions for education. A president can shut off sizable chunks of money to major school systems until those systems comply with Administration rulings. These can go far beyond whether a school system integrates. Through national testing requirements, federal rules on teaching and teachers can be indirectly applied to schools.

If the Federal Bureau of Investigation should ever be headed by a man less honest and courageous than J. Edgar Hoover, the files of that organization could be a strong weapon in the hands of a president who wanted to convince individuals to follow his suggestions.

College Tests Draw Criticism

By DAVID NYDICK

UPI Education Specialist

Criticism has been directed at intelligence tests, achievement tests and college board examinations during the past few years. The most serious problem is not with these tests but rather with teacher-made tests which are used in most classrooms.

Test making involves many techniques in which the test maker requires training. The development of a test is a complicated procedure. There are many types of exam questions such as essay, multiple choice, true-false, matching and fill-in. The test maker must know which of these are best suited for testing a particular skill. It is necessary to state each question in such a way that it is clearly understood. There should be little opportunity to debate which is the correct answer.

The experts who devise examinations such as intelligence tests and college boards are skilled in test making. They follow an extensive procedure in preparing questions, trying them out, revising them and continuously checking them while in actual use. There is a complex statistical analysis of these exams. If these tests are criticized, what should be said about teacher-made tests?

Many teachers have had no training in test making. College courses in testing are not ordinarily required for graduation or teacher certification. Too many schools and school systems do not provide inservice programs on test preparation.

What does the teacher do? She makes up tests in spelling, arithmetic, geography, grammar, history and any other subject area for which she is responsible. She thinks she is testing the student's knowledge but really can't be sure. The questions are often misleading. The sampling of material may be improper. The actual skill being taught may not even be involved in answering the questions.

The test is given to the students and a score is determined. In some cases this score is a major factor in deciding the student's grade for the course or subject. There is often an unrealistic weight given to particular tests in relation to other tests and methods of evaluation. Should short quiz on additional facts be given the same weight as an extensive exam involving problem solving or a student's classroom participation?

The area of teacher-made tests has received too little attention by educators. It has become an important part of the educational program and yet teachers are left to their own untrained methods.

It is unfair to expect teachers to prepare quality tests simply because they are teachers. In many cases the extent of their training is the fact that they themselves have attended school and have taken tests. This is surely a limited background upon which to prepare exams which involve the evaluation of student progress.

There appears to be a serious need for improvement in this area. It is a responsibility of all agencies and people concerned with quality education. There are materials available to help teachers improve the quality of classroom tests. It would seem that an effort in this direction would be most valuable.

Ann Landers

Letter Called Vicious Thing

Dear Ann Landers: That letter signed "Outspoken" was the most vicious thing I have seen in print. The witch who wrote it said, "I wish you would stop telling us wives to thank God our husbands are still alive and to pick up the phone and invite a widow to a party." Her closing blast was this: "If you husbandless females would be less self-pitying and not quite so boring perhaps you wouldn't be so lonely."

According to the insurance companies, more and more women are outliving their husbands. I can promise "Outspoken" that if the shoe is ever on the other foot it will not feel very good. -- VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

Dear Ann Landers: "Outspoken" is right. Every word of her letter is true. I know because I am a widow who had to learn the hard way that even your dearest friends will drop you after a while. A husbandless woman is a social liability, a fifth wheel and a thorn in the side of the hostess.

When my husband died my home was filled with relatives and friends. I had to borrow chairs from the neighbors. It lasted three weeks. Two months later I called the telephone company to see if my phone was out of order. I couldn't believe that not a single person would have tried to call me in five days.

In India Hindu widows used to throw themselves on the burning pyres at their husbands' funerals. It sounds grotesque but perhaps they knew what they were doing. Most widows are as good as dead the day they lose their husbands. -- BITTER AND WITH GOOD REASON

Dear Ann Landers: "Outspoken" is wrong. My husband's death made a woman out of me. I never realized what a clinging vine I was until I became a widow. When I was 43 I learned to drive. I enrolled in secretarial school and got myself a splendid job. Nobody has to find dates for me because I have more than I can handle. I hate to be corny, Ann, but it's true -- "Laugh and the world laughs with you. Cry and streak your makeup." -- CONTENT

Dear Ann Landers: here's how I solved the widow problem: After I overheard my best friend say to her sister, "I'd like to invite Janice but who in the heck can I fix her up with," I decided to free them of the burden of my presence. I sold everything and left town.

For 20 years I have told everyone that my husband is "permanently stationed elsewhere." (This is true. He is permanently stationed in the cemetery.)

I am invited everywhere because no one considers me a threat. -- G.W.

Dear Ann Landers: Can a widow say just a few words to "Outspoken"?

If you and thousands of other married women only knew how many of your husbands made passes at us, you'd have eaten that letter instead of mailing it to Ann Landers.

I was 32 when I lost my wonderful husband. Within weeks of the funeral I received three poorly disguised propositions from the husbands of my closest friends and two out of pitches. Believe it or not, my sister's husband even offered to "help me over my heartache by bringing a new interest" to my shattered life.

So my advice to you smug widow who feel inclined to toss us a crumb now and then is this: "Save it. Some of us could get the whole loaf."

For 20 years I have told everyone that my husband is "permanently stationed elsewhere." (This is true. He is permanently stationed in the cemetery.)

I am invited everywhere because no one considers me a threat. -- G.W.

Dear Ann Landers: Can a widow say just a few words to "Outspoken"?

If you and thousands of other married women only knew how many of your husbands made passes at us, you'd have eaten that letter instead of mailing it to Ann Landers.

I was 32 when I lost my wonderful husband. Within weeks of the funeral I received three poorly disguised propositions from the husbands of my closest friends and two out of pitches. Believe it or not, my sister's husband even offered to "help me over my heartache by bringing a new interest" to my shattered life.

So my advice to you smug widow who feel inclined to toss us a crumb now and then is this: "Save it. Some of us could get the whole loaf."

friend say to her sister, "I'd like to invite Janice but who in the heck can I fix her up with," I decided to free them of the burden of my presence. I sold everything and left town.

COMFORTABLE RANCH: Severity of design that sometimes characterizes ranch is absent in this three-bedroom house, which has an inviting look on the outside and which features a combination of formal and informal living areas on the inside.

Informal Living Stressed

By ANDY LANG
A three-bedroom house often is limited in size because it is intended for a family of four. But if two of the four are active, growing children, they will demand as much space for play and informal activities as a larger home would offer. At the same time, most parents want as much good living area as the larger home has.

Based on many requests for this kind of "big" thinking for a smaller family, architect Lester Cohen has designed this attractive, good-looking house with enough space for junior and senior members of the household. By constructive use of the space, he has handled it in a moderately - budgeted home. The square foot area is 1400, excluding the mudroom, laundry and laundry section behind the garage.

A high spot in the area planning is the kitchen - family room, stretching over 30' at the back of the house. For the kitchen proper, there is a broken L of counters and appliances, including a barbecue unit for indoor cookout use at the point where the kitchen and family room merge.

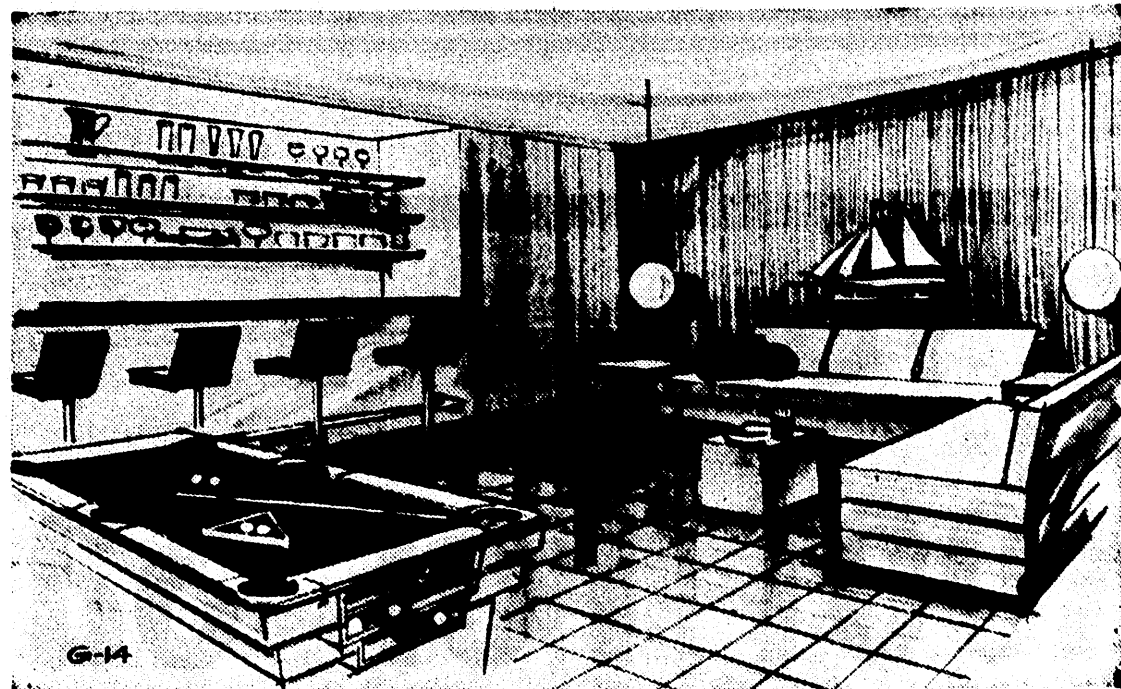

The sunny dinette looks over the outdoor patio, and from the family room, a wall of sliding glass doors opens out to the screened porch. This latter area is an excellent place for kids to play, supervised from the kitchen when they are very young. As the youngsters get older, the porch becomes an outdoor informal room. The patio will be welcome for all for outdoor sunning, eating and informal partying in pleasant weather.

In addition to the family room and its outdoor adjuncts, there is a basement layout that offers a game room, with a dance area, snack bar and convenient lavatory plus a big storage closet. The architect has called it a "Teen-age Room," since it is likely that it will be used more often than not by those of school age, but it probably will get more than a little attention from the oldsters. In any case, when the children are using it for anything from scout meetings to fraternity or sorority sessions, the parents will appreciate that they can do their own formal entertaining upstairs in the big living-dining room combination.

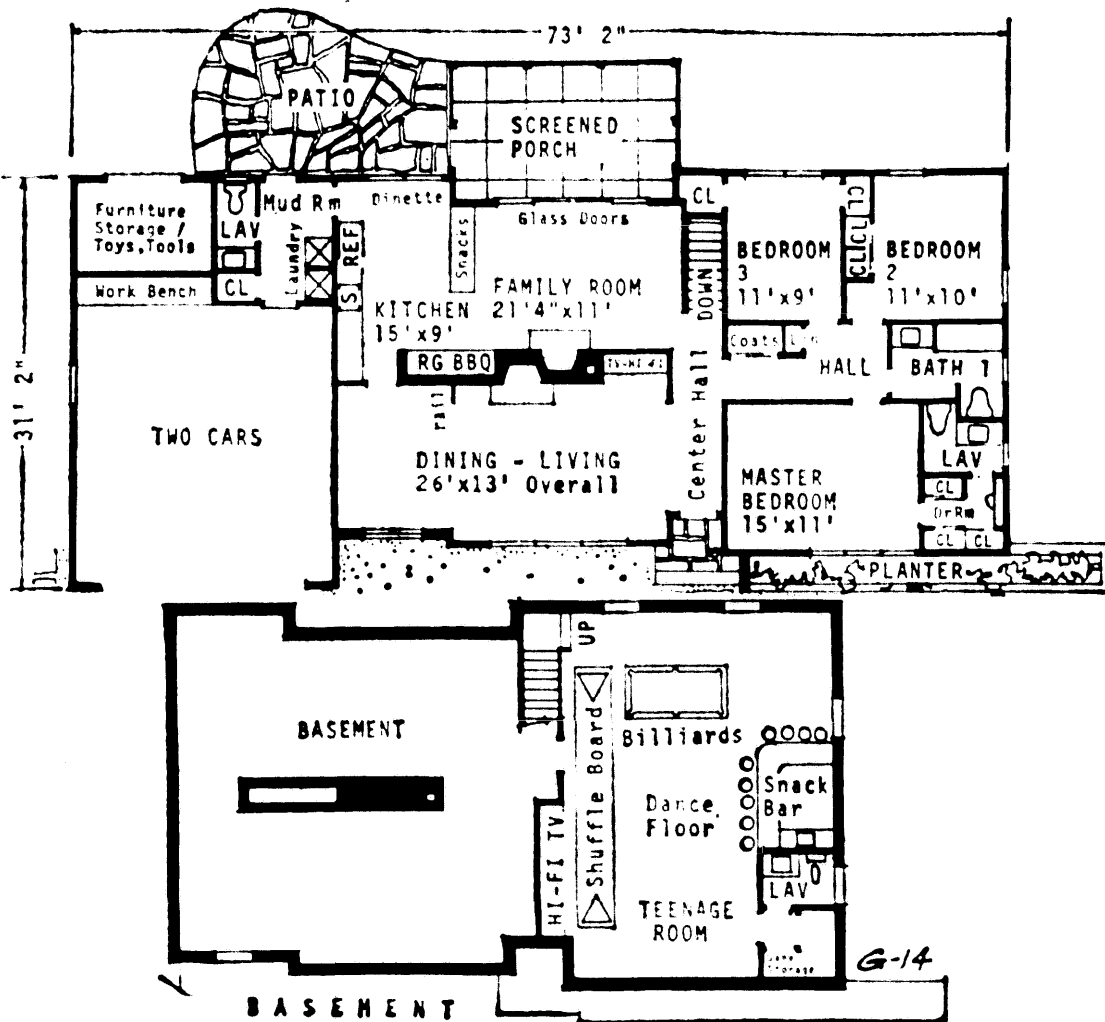

By having the living and dining rooms set together, with no appreciable divider, there is a sweep of 26'. There is a fireplace in the living room section, as well as a tv-hi fi built-in. The fireplace is duplicated in the family room, and the tv-hi fi built-in is duplicated in the basement room.

At the right side of the house, across the center hall, is the bedroom wing. The master bedroom has its own dressing room and lavatory. Note the unusual amount of wall space in this room. To the rear are two other bedrooms, each with plenty of closet space. The family bathroom, with an alcove vanity, is convenient to all rooms.

The two-car garage is generous in size and includes a workbench, plus an outdoor storage area accessible from the rear patio. There is an entrance from the patio to the mud room-laundry area, and another door leading from the latter section to the garage. Packages thus can be carried from the car into the kitchen without going through any of the other rooms in the house.
Including the garage, the over-all dimensions of Design G-14 are 73' 2" by 31' 2". A glance at the exterior shows it to be a ranch house, but without stark lines. The effective use of a long planter and a pleasant mixture of horizontal and vertical siding add inviting warmth.

FOR ENJOYMENT: This is a portion of the basement room, intended to serve as a place for informal entertaining for both the teen-agers and the parents.

FLOOR PLANS: Family room, screened porch and patio are intended for informal living; combined living room-dining room takes care of formal occasions; finished basement room provides place for parties, meetings and game activities.

G-14 STATISTICS

Design G-14 has a combined living-dining room, kitchen, family room, laundry - mud room, patio, screen porch, three bedrooms, two baths and a central hall. There are 1440 square feet of living area, excluding the patio, porch, the two-car garage and the section behind it. There is a teenage or game room in the basement. Over-all dimensions are 73' 2" by 31' 2".

Bay Pollution Protests Made

STURGEON BAY, Wis.—The state committee on water pollution reviewed at two hearings this week the efforts of industries and municipalities in a six county area to reduce sources of pollution.

The hearings, covering two different areas, were held here and in Green Bay. Not under consideration, but a frequent topic of angry discussion among spectators at the hearings, were the sources of pollution of the Fox and Wolf rivers.

Angry fishermen, especially those living on the Door County Peninsula, wanted to know what the committee was doing to stop the "creeping contamination" by paper mill wastes from the mouth of the Fox River at Green Bay.

They were discouraged from voicing these protests, because the hearings were intended to cover sources of pollution in other areas.

Conclusions reached differed. "Although corrective measures have been taken at most of the pollution sources since the earlier survey," the report on the Duck Creek and Peshigo River basins concluded, "localized pollution problems and health hazards were found near some industries and communities."

The investigators were more optimistic about the Door County area.

Chief among the problems faced by small communities in the two areas, the reports said, is the inability of small, public sewage treatment plants to handle industrial wastes.

Another is their inability to cut down on the large amount of clean water entering sanitary sewer systems and handicapping the treatment of normal sewage.

The investigators at the hearings refused to give up their chance to have their say, however.

Roy Jensen, Escanaba, who said he represented the commercial fishing industry, complained of the widespread fish kill in Green Bay. He said the paper mills along the Fox and Wolf Rivers were to blame.

Jensen said commercial fishermen had become increasingly alarmed about the spread of this pollution northward. Officials conducting the hearings said that a biochemical survey of the waters of Green Bay along the entire Door Peninsula would be made starting next month.

Subdivision Is Encouraged

The development of a residential subdivision on 10th Ave. S. west of the Escanaba Golf Course is being encouraged by the City Council, which authorized extension of water service to the area at its meeting Thursday night in the City Hall.

City Manager George Harvey told the Council the estimated cost of the water extension is $1,500 and the extension was approved. The water line will extend into the area along 10th Ave. S. for about one and one-half blocks.

Besides the water service approval, the Council also have first reading to an ordinance amendment to remove a requirement that a graveled street must be constructed by those platting a subdivision. This will also encourage platting, the Council was told.

In other business Mayor George Rusch spoke for the Council and city administration in extending holiday greetings to the public; and Atty. Robert LeMire was introduced as acting city attorney in the absence of City Attorney John G. Erickson.

Joseph Wery, an employee of the city since Oct., 1954, was presented with a watch and received the good wishes of the councilmen upon his scheduled retirement Jan. 1.

The selection of a Charter Study Committee will be announced soon after the first of the year, said Mayor Rusch; and the Council accepted with expressions of appreciation for his service the resignation of J. L. Temby from the Escanaba Library Board.

Transfer of a Cloverland Tavern license from Al Swetkis to Ken Lequia and Emil Auger was approved subject to police sanction; and the Council gave first reading to a proposed ordinance controlling the placing of snow in city streets.

K. I. Sawyer Man Asleep In Car Fined In Court

Sherwood J. Yoder, 21, of K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base paid fines and costs of $30 today after pleading guilty to a charge of being drunk in and about a motor vehicle when arraigned before Judge James Fitzharris.

Delta County Sheriff's officers said Yoder was arrested at 3 a. m. today in his car, which was parked in the middle of the Highland Ave. and "A" St. intersection in Wells. Deputies said the motor was running, but the lights on the car were out.

Yoder, officers said, was sound asleep.

Farmer Caught In Corn Picker; Arm Mangled

MENDON (UPI) — Eugene Schmidt, 44, a farmer of near Mendon was described in fair condition in Borgess Hospital at Kalamazoo Thursday after his arm was mangled and trapped in a corn picker for five hours. Schmidt was said to be suffering from loss of blood and shock and underwent surgery on the arm.

His cries for help were unheard for two hours. A passerby heard him but was unable to free Schmidt. He summoned the Mendon Fire Department rescue squad which finally cut him loose with a blow torch.

Southwest Has Snow And Rain

By United Press International
A severe pre-winter storm stationed over the Southwest raked the area again today with more snow and rain from Los Angeles eastward to Texas. Fog and light rain were plentiful in the Eastern half of the nation.

For the third straight day today the mercury plunged below zero in the Northern Plains. Light snow fell over the Great Lakes and also was spotted in northern New England and the northern Rockies.

In Arizona, heavy snow warnings were posted in the northern and eastern mountain areas. Up to four inches of new snow was expected. Los Angeles shivered in damp, rainy weather with temperature readings in the 30s. Rain fell Thursday in southern California's desert area and in southwestern Arizona.

Congregational Xmas Program Will Be Sunday

RAPID RIVER—Rapid River's Congregational Sunday School will present its annual Christmas Program for the public Sunday, Dec. 19, 7:30 p. m. at the church. Mike Rushford will be master of ceremonies, Linda Jo Deneau, acolyte, Sam Johnson and Jeff McClinchy, ushers. The program will feature recitations, telling the Christmas story, special vocal solos and instrumental selections. Evening soloists will be Jenny Safford, "Christmas Is A Coming," and Gary Bond, "Who's Child Is This?"

Jerry Pyke will favor the audience with appropriate Christmas hymns played on the accordion. Charles Larsen will narrate the stories of the Advent Wreath and "Silent Night." Advent Wreath candles will be lighted by Gary Bond, Willie Pyke, Bruce Deneau, and Sharon Larsen. The story, "Silent Night" will have guitar accompaniment by Dan Safford.

Chorus songs will be sung by the nursery, kindergarten, and primary classes. The evening's choir will be composed of the junior class directed by Mrs. Thomas Safford. Prompter will be Carolyn King. A fellowship hour will be held in the parish hall following the program. Presentations of gifts will be not be translated into census tract statistics, which are necessary to drawing a districting law.

But the two argued that: —The 1963 constitution permits only one apportionment every 10 years, except for the initial one immediately after its adoption.

—The use of 1960 population figures to lessen the disparity between the present districts might actually create greater disparities because of population growth and shifts since 1960.

—The commission lacks the constitutional authority to function because its members were selected from geographical areas not based on population, and many independent voters and advocates of so-called minority political parties had no voice in the two major parties which named the commissioners.

—And that the commission's time has run out because the constitution requires its work to be completed within 10 days of the time Federal census figures become available.

Firemen's Toy Shop To Close Monday Here

The firemen's toy shop will close Monday, marking the successful conclusion of the Escanaba fire department's "toys for Christmas" project, in which used toys are repaired, refinished and turned over to the Salvation Army for distribution.

The project receives cooperation of the Escanaba Junior Chamber of Commerce and Salvation Army.

Fire Chief Nels Bergeon expressed appreciation to the many persons who contributed used toys to the Christmas cheer project, and the firemen with the Jaycees and the Salvation Army in thanking those who helped make the program a success.

Major Orville Butts of the Salvation Army will distribute the toys and baskets to the needy families at the Christmas Headquarters at 526 S. 10th St., Dec. 22, from 1 to 4 p. m.

made by Patsy and Clara Reno. Christmas cookies, coffee, and punch will be served by the senior high class.

Revamped NATO Force Discussed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson were reported today to be discussing a revamped NATO nuclear force plan which may be gaining Allied support.

Decorating Party At Rapid River

A decorating party will be held at Rapid River's Congregational Church Saturday, Dec. 18 at 7:30 p. m. The junior and senior high classes of the Sunday School will meet and decorate two Christmas trees, one for the church and other for the parish hall. The church tree will be decorated with Christmas lights and tinsel; the parish hall tree with old fashioned trimmings of strung cranberries and popcorn. The trees have been donated by Al Bond.

Following the tree trimming activity, the young people will enjoy pizzas for refreshment. Party plans were made by the pastor, Rev. Philip C. Meli, Mrs. Thomas Safford, and Cindy Safford.

Briefly Told

The social security district office in Escanaba will be open for business in special hours tonight until 9 o'clock and also Saturday morning from 8:30 to noon. Persons who will be 65 or older by the end of the year should make claims for medicare if they have not already done so.

Chicago Prices

POTATOES
CHICAGO (UPI)—(USDA) — Michigan potatoes (FOB): Demand slow; market steady; round white paper 10s mostly 32 cents; 20s mostly 38 cents; 50s 1.30-1.35; russets firm 20s mostly 59 cents; mesh 10s 35-35½ cents.

Another feature of Wilson's brief "working" visit to Washington appeared to be an American diplomatic effort to get Britain to move faster in applying more sanctions against the all-white rebel government of Rhodesia.

Wilson arrived in the capital late Thursday and "got down to very substantial discussions" immediately with the President during a White House session that lasted one hour and 40 minutes. The two leaders were to meet again twice today, over lunch at 1 p. m. EST, and in the late afternoon.

The British leader's visit was the second stage of a week-long venture into personal diplomacy by Johnson, his most intensive since he entered the White House two years ago. The first visitor was President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan, who left early Thursday; his third will be West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, who arrives Sunday.

As for the nuclear force plan under discussion, it appeared to be a variant of the Atlantic Nuclear Force (ANF) Wilson himself proposed during a Washington visit last December. The new version was said to include:

—An Allied nuclear force to which Britain would donate the four Polaris submarines she will have by the end of 1967.

—West Germany and probably Italy and the Netherlands would participate by financial contributions and by taking part in a joint command structure, such as now exists for NATO. They would not, however, operate weapons.

—There would be no crews of mixed nationalities, as was proposed in an earlier U.S. plan for a multi-lateral force (MLF).

—Each member of the force, probably five in all, would have a veto over firing the weapons.

Election Drive Winds Up In France Today

charges of fraud in the Dec. 5 first-round poll in France's overseas territories.

The Communist-backed candidate pointed to results such as 99.2 per cent for De Gaulle in the Comores Islands in the Atlantic and charged opposition leaders overseas had been jailed, exiled or otherwise silenced before the campaign.

The overseas vote—one per cent of the total poll—could have been crucial, Mitterrand said.

According to the latest public opinion poll, De Gaulle held a 55-45 per cent lead over Mitterrand, but some observers thought it might be a closer-run result.

List Services At Bark River Salem Lutheran

Salem Lutheran Church of Bark River has announced the following services during the Christmas season:

Dec. 24, Christmas Eve—from 10:30 to 11:00 p.m., traditional Christmas hymns and carols will be sung by the congregation. Worshippers may come anytime during the singing.

Beginning at 11 p.m., the First Holy Eucharist of Christmas will be celebrated. All confirmed Lutherans are invited to receive the Blessed Sacrament of Christ's Body and Blood. Pastor Wayne A. Monks will have a brief meditation on John 1:14, "The Word Became Flesh and Dwelt Among Us."

The Salem Choir will sing "Of the Father's Love Begotten," a Christmas hymn from the 5th century based on 1 Timothy 3:16; and a medieval Dutch carol, "The Stork She Rose on Christmas Eve," based on a traditional legend from the Middle Ages. Mrs. Hjalmer Stenberg will be the organist.

Dec. 25—The Second Holy Eucharist of Christmas will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. The meditation will be the same as Christmas Eve. The choir will not sing. Miss Janice Bolm will be the organist.

Dec. 26—St. Stephen's Day will be commemorated at the 9:30 a.m. Service. The sermon will be directed toward St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr. The children of the Sunday Church School will sing "Sleep So Sweetly, Baby Jesus," "While by My Sheep I Watched at Night," and "Christmas, Awake! Salute the Happy Morn." Following the Service the children will receive their Christmas gifts from the Sunday Church School.

Dec. 31—New Year's Eve, Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 p.m. All members are urged to spend this hour reflecting upon their past, present, and future lives as Christians, and receiving the Holy Communion. The chalice will be used by the congregation. Special hymns, emphasizing the seriousness of this night, will be sung.

Jan. 2—Holy Communion will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. The service will be a "Narrative Eucharist," in which parts of the service will be narrated and explained as the pastor celebrates. David Bolm, a member of Salem Church and a pre-seminary student at Gustavus Adolphus College will be the narrator.

Holiday Party At St. Joseph's

St. Joseph's Altar Society held its annual Christmas Party Monday evening in the church parlor. The business meeting was conducted by president, Mrs. Nap Morin Sr. Several new members were introduced and it is hoped that ladies of the parish who do not belong or who have neglected their membership will join us for the start of the new year. Long range plans were outlined for activities to be carried out during the coming year.

In keeping with one of the recommendations of the recent Ecumenical Council everyone was urged to practice brotherly love in the true spirit of Christmas.

The holiday motif was carried out in the table appointments and the refreshments of the social which followed the business meeting. Gifts were exchanged and members enjoyed an evening of cards of their choice. A beautiful poinsettia candle and holder were awarded the winner at each table.

Mrs. AND MRS. Clyde Caron, 1713 3rd Ave. N. announce the engagement of their daughter, Rose to Roger Bricker, son of Mrs. LaVerne Bricker of Gladstone. A January wedding is planned.

Santa and the Zabbazara Bus

BY LUCRECE BEALE

Airborne, the trio headed for the golden island.

Synopsis: Santa shows Mr. D the island of Zabbazara on a map of Faraway Places. They and the little boy get on the bus and set out for the island.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

THE GOLDEN ISLAND

They rode all day and they rode all night. On the morning of the second day they arrived at the edge of a blue-green sea. In the middle of the sea was a golden isle. This was Zabbazara.

Santa and Mr. D and the little boy got out of the bus. "There's no bridge!" cried the little boy. "And no boat. How will we get across the sea?"

Santa pointed to an old sea trunk on the beach. A sign on the trunk said "Free ride to Zabbazara." They opened the trunk. It was filled with pieces of colored rubber.

"They're balloons!" exclaimed Mr. D. "What use are they?"

The little boy snatched out a purple balloon and began to blow it up. In two breaths it was bigger than he. He could hardly hold on to it. A little breeze tugged at the balloon. Before he knew what had happened the boy was in the air and sailing over the sea.

"My goodness!" cried Mr. D. "What a wonderful way to travel!"

He took a balloon out of the box and blew it up. In a few seconds he was sailing after the boy. A moment later Santa, too, was on his way.

When they came near the island the little breeze died down as if someone had pressed a button. The three travelers floated gently down.

Now they saw that the island was not all gold. But the trees bore such golden apples and oranges and pears and bananas, and the flowers had such bright yellow blossoms, that it seemed truly a golden island.

A group of laughing children burst through the trees and surrounded the visitors.

"Come play with us!" Santa shook his head. "We don't have time for play. We have work to do."

"But, there's no work here! We only play!"

"Don't you even go to school?" asked the little lost boy in astonishment.

"What for? We know all we need to know."

"Perhaps you had better take us to your elders," said Santa. "The children hooted. 'We have no elders! There are no grownups in Zabbazara.'"

The little boy thought he had never heard of a land so grand. Santa said, "You have a Princess, I have heard."

The children said of course they had a Princess, and they would take Santa to see her. They led the visitors out of the trees and down a golden street to a golden palace. There in a golden hall on a golden throne sat the Princess. She was no older in years than the little lost boy, who thought that never again in his life would he see so lovely and shining a creature.

The Princess smiled graciously. Santa told her he had heard she had great power and could grant any wish and break any charm. He asked her help in breaking the spell the evil Voodoo man had cast over Santa Land.

The Princess's smile vanished. She sent all the golden-haired children out of the palace. Then she said, "What you

Beetle Control Bans Lifted In Grain Shipment

LANSING (UPI) — Most small grains may now be shipped without regard to the cereal beetle quarantine, according to the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Unrestricted movement of rye, wheat, oats and barley is being allowed until June 1 because by December most beetles in these grains have either died or starved, officials said.

have told me makes me fearful for us all. The Voodoo man threatens us, too, and I do not want the others to know."

"But you have great power," began Santa.

The Princess looked even younger than her years. "Alas! The Voodoo man has found a secret magic that makes his power greater than mine. There is no magic I can work against him. Unless we find what his secret is he will destroy us all."

School Expels War Hecklers

DETROIT (UPI) — Four high school students, three of them girls, have been temporarily expelled from school because they wore black arm bands to school to protest the war in Vietnam.

Cass Tech Principal Orville Heft said he first "excluded" Barry Biesanz, 17, the son of a Wayne State University professor, Wednesday following a protest in front of the Armed Services information desk at the school.

The information desk was set up in a classroom as part of the school's Military Day and provided students with information about the military.

"The youngsters were walking back and forth and making light of the military literature," Heft said.

Heft said Biesanz was taken to his office because he was "doing the most heckling."

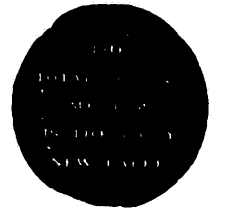

"The boy told me he was against the war in Viet Nam and against military training because all it did was train people to kill innocent women and children," Heft said.

The boy, Heft said, was "excluded" from school when he refused to remove the arm band.

Thursday three girls, Tessa Davidson, 17, Huntington Woods; Anne Kransdorf, 16, and Loretta Rosenfeld, 16, both of Detroit, wore the black arm bands to school.

"They said they were showing their sympathies on the war in Vietnam. They refused to take the arm bands off, and so I excluded them. They were not expelled or excluded permanently," Heft said.

Mrs. Biesanz said her son, who was a National Merit Scholar, was doing poorly in school because of his concern about the war.

Eaton Changing Name On Dec. 31

Eaton Yale & Towne Inc. is the new corporate name of its wholly-owned subsidiary, Eaton Manufacturing Co., effective Dec. 31, following approval of the change by shareholders at a special meeting Dec. 14.

John C. Virden, chairman of the board, explained that the new name "more clearly reflects the substantially broadened operations of the company in recent years through diversification into new products and markets."

In sharp contrast to the company's dependency on the automotive industry for 75 per cent of its sales only three years ago, Virden pointed out, Eaton Yale & Towne's volume today is composed of: truck and off-highway components, 27 per cent; materials handling equipment, 24 per cent; general products for industry and consumers, 22 per cent; passenger cars, 18 per cent; locks and other hardware products, 9 per cent.

The new name was recommended by directors to also reflect the statutory merger of

Red Wings Return To Victory Column

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Red Wings, off the winning track for one game, got back into the right side of the ledger Thursday night against their "soft touch team"—the Boston Bruins.

The Bruins, their goal-tender Bernie Parent, in particular, didn't give the Red Wings an easy time of it, however, losing by one of their most respectable margins of the series six losses to Detroit, 2-0.

Detroit's own net-minder, Roger Crozier, turned in a flawless game in turning back 26 Boston shots to pick up his second shutout of the season and give the Wings their eighth win in nine starts.

The Wings had seen their winning streak stopped at seven games just one night before when they had been given a 5-3 setback by Toronto.

Considering the constant pressure of 38 Detroit shots on goal against him, Parent's job in front of the goal was almost as

Seven Tigers Ink Contracts

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Tigers announced Thursday they have signed seven players including Al Kaline for the 1966 season.

The other six are pitchers Hank Aguirre, Denny McLain and Joe Sparrma, catcher Bill Freehan and outfielders Willie Horton and Gates Brown.

Kaline, who first signed with the Tigers in 1953 as a bonus player, was the first to sign for the third straight year. General Manager James A. Campbell said.

Kaline, who will be 31 Sunday, said he was anxious to get to spring training, perhaps with the rookies who will report in early February. He said he was optimistic about an off-season operation on his foot.

"I'm doing something now I couldn't do before—walk without a limp," he said.

No contract terms were disclosed.

Kaline, a former American League batting champion, hit .281 last season. Horton, who was voted the team's most exciting player in a poll of Detroit baseball writers, hit .273 with 29 home runs after a torrid early season streak.

McLain, 21, posted a 16-6 record and 2.62 earned run average to lead the Tiger pitching staff last season. Aguirre won 5 of his first 11 decisions and finished with 14-10. Sparrma was 13-8.

Brown, Detroit's best pinch hitter and a part time outfielder, hit .256 and reached base on 13 of 37 pinch hitting appearances.

Freehan, hampered by an injury, hit .234 but fielded .996, a team record.

Spar's, Wardy's Dartball Teams Win Semifinals

In semifinal action in the Escanaba Tavern Dartball Association's first half tournament last night Spar's beat Bay de Noc and Wardy's defeated Palm.

The winners will clash for the tourney crown at Lombardi's Monday, Dec. 20, at 8 p. m. The losers meet in the consolation game Tuesday at Al's.

Bruins Practice But No Tackling

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Practice contact but no tackling was in store for the offensive and defensive units of the UCLA Bruins today in drills for their dual New Year's day against favored Michigan State in the Rose Bowl.

Head Coach Tommy Prothro has held off risking a full-scale scrimmage since the team began workouts Monday, for fear of hurting someone and further increasing the 14½-point odds given the Spartans to win again in Pasadena.

Prothro said both units will go in for serious play but there would be no tackling of the ball carrier in practice sessions this afternoon.

Phy Ed Students Do Research In Many Subjects

MARQUETTE — Writing and research usually aren't associated with physical education but the 123 students who majored in health and physical education the past seven years at Northern Michigan University utilized both in conducting extensive research.

Since 1958 at NMU 86 males and 37 coeds have collected, evaluated, and compiled data on projects.

The research project is partial requirement for seniors enrolled in a course titled Seminar 410.

Bill Rademacher, who set a new individual season pass receiving record for a Northern eleven in 1963, selected "Handling of the Handicapped Students in Physical Education Classes" as his project in 1964. Rademacher, who hails from Menominee, is now with the New York Jets of the American Football League.

A student from Vulcan, Jack Barry, '64, utilized both his physical education major and his mathematics minor in his report, "Use and Application of Basketball Statistics."

Betsy Hale, a Gladstone coed, wrote a critical report titled "Inadequacy of the Elementary School Physical Education Program" for her requirement in 1964.

In Service

Army Staff Sergeant Donald G. Sopher, whose wife, Alda, lives in Gladstone, and other members of the 7th Infantry Division participated in a five-day field training exercise in Korea, which ended Dec. 11.

During the exercise Sergeant Sopher took part in defensive operations under simulated combat conditions. Sopher practiced repelling attacking forces with small arms fire and grenades and coordinating defensive moves with armor and artillery units.

The sergeant, a section chief in the division, entered the Army in January 1954. He is the son of Mrs. Florence K. Sopher, Streator, Ill.

Briefly Told

State Police issued speeding tickets Thursday to Victor J. Derouin, 1218 N. 18th St., Escanaba, and Wallace L. Godfrey, 207 Delta Ave., Gladstone.

Kingsford snapped its season long losing string this week by edging Niagara, 54-49, in Menominee Range Conference action. . . . Veteran Jeff Franson clicked on five free throws in the closing minute of the game and led the Flivvers on the scoreboard with 17 points.

Classy Dave Vertanen put on a one man scoring demonstration against Negaunee St. Paul, firing in 40 points, but it wasn't enough as his Chassell Panthers bowed to the Emeralds, 81-58. . . . Vertanen scored 16 of his team's 24 field goals and added eight free throws to boost his point total to 214 for the season, tops in the Upper Peninsula.

Crystal Falls, playing without the services of 6 foot 6 inch center Gary Sackech who was sidelined with the flu, took an 83-46 trouncing from Iron River in a Menominee Range Conference game. . . . Dane Dominici led the Redskins to their fourth straight Range triumph with 31 points. . . . He is the leading scorer in the conference with 108 points.

Menominee will resume football relations with Stambaugh for the first time since 1931 when the teams met in the 1966 season opener at Stambaugh Sept. 2. . . . Menominee and Escanaba, first game foes for many years, will clash in the second game of the '66 campaign Sept. 10 at Menominee.

Dr. Harold Sponberg, former vice president of Northern Michigan University, has been named winner of a 1965 Sports Illustrated Silver Anniversary All-America award. . . . Current president of Eastern Michigan University at Ypsilanti, Sponberg was nominated for the award by Gustavus Adolphus College from which he graduated as a Little All-America grinder.

Bergland and L'Anse extended their all-winning cage streaks in U.P. prep games this week. . . . Bergland made six straight by edging Mass. 51-48, in Porcupine Mountain Conference action. . . . L'Anse notched its fifth in a row by whipping Baraga, 87-43. . . . Baraga concentrated on stopping Gerry Gerard and held the lanky star to 18 points but Roland Swartz shook loose for 27.

Dressen Is Pleased With New Infielder

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Life is like that, Sandy Koufax loses a roommate and Charlie Dressen gains one of the best bowlers in the major leagues.

Charlie didn't even know about Dick Tracewski's bowling ability, or that the spindly 30-year-old infielder was Koufax's roommate with the Dodgers.

All Charlie knew was Tracewski could help the Tigers and that's why he okayed the deal that sent pitcher Phil Regan to the world champs.

"The dope on him," said Dressen about Tracewski, "is that he can go in there for a couple weeks and do pretty good. He can play anywhere in the infield and my idea is he can back up (Jerry) Lumpe at second base."

That's Charlie, always in there thinking, even when that thinking revolves around a mere utility infielder who does an acceptable job defensively but will never make it to Cooperstown on his bat.

Fresh back from Puerto Rico where he watched 10 ball games and, incidentally, also lost his luggage, Dressen hardly had walked into his Los Angeles apartment when he was ready to offer a few of his views on several of baseball's latest moves, including Detroit's recent deal, Baltimore's acquisition of Frank Robinson and the White Sox hiring of Eddie Stanky.

"The White Sox got themselves a good man in Stanky," said Charlie over the long distance telephone. "With the club he has now he doesn't have too much power, but he's got good pitching and enough speed to play his type game."

Dressen also feels the Orioles helped them elude a great deal with Robinson.

"He's not one of those one-year hitters. He hits all the time," offered Charlie. "Maybe he won't find the ballpark in Baltimore exactly like Cincinnati, but he'll get his hits. He'll just have to hit 'em 20 or 30 feet further to clear the fence."

For the most part, however, Charlie preferred to talk about his own ballplayers.

"We got a couple that are burning up the league in Puerto Rico," he said. "Jim Northrup and Mickey Stanley. They're hitting one-two in that league. They're gonna help us plenty."

Getting back to the Tracewski-Koufax deal, Charlie wasn't too surprised about a Dodger announcement which cited the fact that Regan probably would be a fourth regular starter behind Koufax, Don Drysdale and Claude Osteen.

"I knew Regan wanted to start," said Dressen. "But we have six other guys who can start in (Bill) Monbouquette, (Denny) McLain, (Joe) Sparrma, (Mickey) Lolich, (Hank) Aguirre and (Dave) Wickersham. I might make a pinch pitcher out of Wickersham. As a matter of fact, I'm pretty sure I will. He pitched relief before and did well."

In Tracewski, Dressen acquired a likeable young man who hit only .215 for the Dodgers last season and owns modest .235 life-time average but one for whom Walt Alston always expressed high regard.

"He's the ideal man to have on the bench," said Alston, after his regular second baseman, Jim Lefebvre, injured himself with Minnesota and Tracewski took over for him.

Alston remembered a time during the 1964 season when Tracewski, filled in and batted around 200 for a few weeks. Charlie remembered the same thing, too.

"I think he'll help us," said Dressen. "He gives us insurance in the infield."

Tracewski, who spent his whole professional career in the Dodgers' organization, will be coming into a strange league, of course.

He and Koufax got along in the line but there is one plus in this deal for the utility infielder. No matter whom he draws for a roommate with the Tigers, he can be sure the telephone won't ring so much anymore.

College Quints In Light Slate

By United Press International
A light schedule of 2005 marking the beginning of the holiday recess is on tap for Michigan's small college basketball teams this weekend.

Only two games are scheduled for tonight and four for Saturday.

In tonight's games, Central Michigan will put its 5-1 season record on the line against Western Illinois in a non-conference game at Mt. Pleasant and Adrian will travel to Ypsilanti for a game with the 5-1 Eastern Michigan Hurons.

Saturday night has four non-conference games on the schedule.

The high flying University of Detroit, with four wins in five games, will play host to Baldwin - Wallace, Northwood will travel to Detroit College, Western Michigan meets Northern Illinois at DeKalb, Ill., and Central Michigan will play its second game of the weekend against Calvin College.

Rags To Riches For Ed Brown In Colts' Camp

By United Press International
Ed Brown, the National Football League's 1965 version of rags to riches, wasn't good enough for a last-place team, but may be the Baltimore Colts' only hope for first place.

Brown, a 12-year veteran, was warming the Pittsburgh Steelers' bench throughout the season but now finds himself in the camp of the Colts, who purchased the quarterback for a $100 waiver price Thursday. The Steelers, in last place in the East, agreed to the waiver deal as a favor because players cannot be traded after the fifth game of the season.

Brown is going to back up Tom Matte, who hasn't played a full game at quarterback since his college days at Ohio State five years ago. Matte, a regular halfback, got the nod when back-to-back injuries sidelined Johnny Unitas and Gary Cuozzo.

Even if the Colts win, however, Green Bay can wrap up the crown by whipping the Forty Niners at San Francisco Sunday, in other games, Dallas invades New York, Philadelphia hosts Detroit, Minnesota journeys to Chicago and Washington entertains Pittsburgh.

The Packers still are riding high after whipping the Colts last week when Paul Hornung played his finest game ever by scoring five touchdowns. The Forty-Niners, on the other hand, suffered a humiliating 61-20 loss to the Bears and are one-touchdown underdogs against the Packers.

Second place in the East and a trip to the Runnerup Bowl in Miami are at stake in New York and the Giants are 3-point favorites to go South after the campaign.

Spartans Get Title Trophy

LANSING (UPI)—The Michigan State University football team today was presented with a United Press International trophy, emblematic of the 1965 National College Football Championship.

The 32-inch high trophy, topped by a regulation size gold-plated football, was presented to head Coach Hugh Duffie (Daughter by Louis A. Weil Jr., publisher of the State Journal). The trophy is inscribed: "Michigan State University, national football champions of 1965 as selected by the United Press International board of coaches."

The presentation was made during a luncheon meeting of the Downtown Coaches Club attended by Daugherty, the MSU 44-man traveling squad, and assistant coaches. About 300 club members attended the $2.50 a-plate luncheon.

The UPI board of coaches is composed of coaches at major schools across the nation who vote each week for the top football teams and select a national champion at the end of the season.

Michigan State won the honor after going undefeated through a tough 10-game schedule to win its first undisputed Big Ten championship.

The luncheon was in the nature of a bon voyage for the 44 players and eight coaches who will leave Saturday for California to prepare for the Rose Bowl game Jan. 1 against UCLA.

The Downtown Club, composed of area businessmen who are interested in inter-collegiate and high school athletics, also presented each coach and player with a leather traveling suitcase.

NFL News 'N Notes

Rams Rolled Up Sleeves To Halt Losing Streak

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO THOSE Los Angeles Rams, who a month ago were mired in an eight-game losing streak and now have won three in a row and hold the key to Baltimore's championship hopes in the National Football League's Western Conference? ... "The fellows just kept rolling up their sleeves when things were going bad," says Coach Harland Sware. "One of the biggest things was that the individual and team character never changed. Everybody kept pulling together and now it's paying off." ... Biggest problem for the Colts in Saturday's CBS national TV game at the Coliseum could be Rams' pass-catch combination of Roman Gabriel and Tommy McDonald. ... Each had his biggest day of the season against Cleveland last week, Gabriel passing for 323 yards and 5 touchdowns and McDonald catching 6 of Gabriel's passes for 200 yards and 3 scores. ... "This is the best he's ever played for us," said Sware of Gabriel, who has gone all the way at quarterback in victories over Green Bay, St. Louis and Cleveland since Bill Munson was lost for the season with a knee operation. ... "Tommy just goes on and on—he has that ability of getting open," said Sware of McDonald, who had his second 200-yard day as a professional in the Cleveland game. ... On

Dec. 10, 1961, McDonald caught 7 passes for 237 yards for the Philadelphia Eagles against the New York Giants. ... Cleveland Coach Blanton Collier was more concerned by the performance of the Rams' front four of Dave Jones, Merlin Olsen, Roosevelt Grier and Lamar Lundy in holding the Browns to 40 yards rushing (20 by Jim Brown) and only six first downs. ... After the game when an attendant asked Collier for permission to admit newsmen to the Browns' dressing room, the coach replied: "Yes, but keep that Fearsome Foursome out."

ANOTHER AFTERNOON LIKE LAST SUNDAY will be needed for Gale Sayers to set an all-time season record for combined net yardage in a season. ... With a single game record 336 yards running, receiving and returning kicks against San Francisco last week, the Bears' fabulous rookie boosted his 13-game total to 2,115 yards. ... The season record is 2,428 by Philadelphia's Timmy Brown in 1963. ... The Bears' opponent on Sunday, Minnesota, was the victim of Sayers' previous best day on Oct. 17—297 yards. ... Sayers is the first to score by rushing (13), receiving (6), punt returns (1) and kickoff returns (1) since Bobby Mitchell, of Cleveland, and Timmy Brown in 1961. ... With 126, he is within two points of the rookie scoring record of 128 points by Detroit's Doak Walker in 1950. ... Walker scored 62 of his points on field goals and conversions.

JUST CALL HIM AUTOMATIC FRED COX—at least from the 35-yard-line and within. ... The able kicker of the Minnesota Vikings has tried 28 field goals from the 35 and within in the last two seasons and has made every one. ... Outside the 35 Cox has attempted 39 and made 15 for an overall two-season mark of 43 field goals in 67 attempts.

"A BIG HOLE OPENED UP in the middle but I started to punt anyway, then I decided I might as well run," says Jim Bakken, the St. Louis kicker who sped 28 yards on fourth down in the Cards-Dallas game last Saturday. ... Bakken holds the longest current streak of conversions in the NFL with 114 now that Tommy Davis of San Francisco has finally missed. He began doing the Cardinals' punting at mid-season and has kicked 19 times for a 43.6 average. ... The run, however, was the first in his pro career dating back to 1962. ... "Now a lot of people are saying what we've been saying about him all along," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry of rookie halfback Dan Reeves, who broke several tackles to score on a 23-yard pass play from Don Meredith in the nationally televised game. "He always gets you those extra yards after he is hit—a strong boy with plenty of desire."

LINEBACKER MAXIE BAUGHAN of the Philadelphia Eagles ran 33 yards for a touchdown with an intercepted pass against Pittsburgh and made the last three yards after a nifty fake that took him past big Charlie Bradshaw, the Steelers' 6-6, 260-pound tackle. ... Said Baughan: "I was as surprised as he was. I didn't know what to do when I saw him in my way but I thought I'd try something." ... As surprised was the Eagles' rookie defensive back Jim Nittles, a 5-10, 165-pounder who picked off three Pittsburgh passes. ... Making his first prolonged appearance in an NFL game, the free agent from Wisconsin described his three steals this way: "The first came on a cut-out. If he had cut-in, I'd probably been lost. On the second I was playing catch-up and was lucky. On the third, I think I made a mistake but one of our linebackers knocked the receiver off stride." ... Nittles got the ball instead and ran 56 yards for a TD. ... Coach Joe Kuharich signed Nittles after vaguely recalling his play for Wisconsin against one of Kuharich's Notre Dame teams. ... "I didn't remember exactly what he did but he was around the field, always causing a commotion," says the coach.

New York Quint Fashions Upset

By United Press International
Frank McGuire always said that the best basketball players come from New York, so he couldn't have been too surprised when his own brand of subway imports was derailed by New York University.

McGuire was famed for his subway shuttle that brought him championship teams at North Carolina, and now that he's moved over to South Carolina McGuire is employing his time-proven formula of stocking his team with New York boys.

"The folks down in Columbia (S.C.) don't care where the boys come from, just as long as they win," McGuire said. The Gamecocks fooled a lot of people by winning their first four games, including an upset over top-ranked Duke, but they fell apart before the "home folks" Thursday night when they were routed by NYU 83-66 at Madison Square Garden.

Bradley, ranked 11th in the nation, scored seven consecutive points late in the second half to overcome Butler 73-70 and register its seventh victory in a row.

Billy Smith put in a rebound with 10 seconds to go to give Loyola of Chicago a 74-73 victory over St. Louis. Smith took game scoring honors with 23 points, two more than Rich Parks had for the Billikins.

Kansas State won its second game against four losses by tripping Texas Tech 74-68. Guard Ron Paradis paced the Wildcats offense with 18 points, mostly on long-range bombing, while Bob Glover of Texas Tech took game honors with 28 points.

Syracuse remained unbeaten in six starts and went over the century mark for the fifth time by blasting Penn State 103-79.

In other games, De Paul humiliated Iona 82-37 for its fifth straight triumph; Holy Cross beat Dartmouth 70-55; Louisiana State topped Rice 85-78; Drake tamed Iowa State 72-66; Houston defeated Texas A&M 90-85 and Mt. St. Mary's upset Evansville, the No. 1 team in the small college ranks, 83-81.

Veterans Clash In Grid Finale

By United Press International
Father time isn't due to close the door on 1965 for another two weeks, but two of his more illustrious proteges are already busy planning an interesting finale to this year's American Football League season.

Houston's George Blanda and Boston's Babe Parilli are the aging characters in question, and these two veteran quarterbacks will square off Saturday in a game that could help to decide second place in the Eastern Division.

Second place is all that's left to settle in this season's AFL race. Buffalo has nailed down the Eastern Division title and San Diego has captured the Western Division crown, so the final weekend of activity offers little more than competition for individual honors.

Houston (4-9) has a chance to gain a tie for second place in the East if New York loses to Buffalo on Sunday. The Oilers, though, are on a five-game losing streak while the Patriots (3-8-2) have won two straight.

The remainder of the AFL teams close out their schedule on Sunday. Besides the Jets-Bills clash at New York, San Diego hosts Oakland and Kansas City entertain Denver.

Buffalo will be out to finish its season without a loss on the road while New York is interested in solidifying its hold on second place in the East.

Both teams have good quarterbacks with the Jets' Joe Namath currently ranked third in the league and Buffalo's Jack Kemp fourth. New York also has the fourth leading rusher in Matt Snell and the third leading pass receiver in Don Maynard.

San Diego's Paul Lowe is within 11 yards of a new league single season rushing mark and figures to get it easily against Oakland. The Raiders' Clem Daniels, who holds the current record of 1,000 yards, is currently in third place in the league's rushing department and a good battle is expected between the men

HOW PEARLS ARE FORMED
When an irritating piece of matter enters the shell of an oyster, the epithelium sac encircles the parasite. Inside this sac, the parasite is coated by thin sheets of pearl. Soon it is completely covered and a lustrous pearl is formed.

Bludgeon Killing Trial Is Granted Change Of Venue

CASSOPOLIS (UPI) — Circuit Judge David Anderson Thursday granted Billy G. Sickler, 39, Niles, a change of venue for his murder trial in connection with a bludgeon slaying last July 4.

Anderson said the location for Sickler's trial will be determined later.

Sickler is accused of beating to death Arthur Eugene Light, 40, a Cassopolis truck driver on July 4. Light's widow, Clara, 29, who was estranged at the time of the slaying, is serving a 25 to 50 year prison term for complicity in the death of her husband.

Sickler claimed he couldn't get a fair trial in Cass County because of widespread publicity in the case.

Mrs. Light pleaded guilty to second degree murder charges in the case.

Sickler's trial has been tentatively scheduled for next March.

Mrs. Light is the mother of four children and Sickler is the father of three.

U.P. Musician To Write Finnish Music History

MARQUETTE — A Vaino Hoover Foundation post-doctoral research grant has been awarded to a Northern Michigan University alumna, Dr. Ruth-Esther Hillila, a native of Marquette County.

Purpose of the grant is to enable Dr. Hillila to write a history of the music of Finland during the current academic year. She will leave for Finland after the first of the year.

Dr. Hillila, who now resides at 117 Crestwood Road, Painesville, Ohio, was born in Ishpeming where her father, the Rev. Hugo M. Hillila, served the Bethel Lutheran congregation.

The family later moved to Marquette where Dr. Hillila was graduated from the John D. Pierce High School. She began her college education at Northern and later attended Suomi College, Hancock, Hunter College, New York City, and Lowell State Teachers College, Lowell, Mass. She returned to Northern as a senior and was awarded the bachelor of science degree in music education in 1949.

Her master of arts degree in church music was awarded Dr. Hillila by Boston University, and in 1952 Dr. Hillila received a scholarship from the Church of Finland to do further research in church music in Finland.

In 1963, she received the Ph.D. degree in musicology from Boston University and for the past two years, Dr. Hillila has held the position of associate professor of music at Cuyahoga Community College, Cleveland. She resigned her post this fall to devote full time to her new book.

Next fall, Dr. Hillila plans to begin a five-year teaching term in Hong Kong for the Lutheran Church in America on the faculty of Chung Chi College of the Chinese University of Hong Kong. She will teach courses in music education and music history.

Children's Party Is Sponsored By Wells Lions Club

The Wells Lions Club is sponsoring a Christmas party for the children, to be held at the DeCock Bottle Gas Co. building on Tuesday, Dec. 21, at 6:30 p. m.

Santa Claus will be at the party, with gifts for the children. The Lions Club is inviting children from the Wells, Soo Hill, Flat Rock and Pine Ridge areas to the party.

Old Certificate May Be Used To Get 1966 Plates

LANSING (UPI) — Michigan motorists may use last year's registration certificate instead of their car titles to purchase 1966 state license plates, Secretary of State James M. Hare announced.

Hare, acting in response to several inquiries, said, "Many persons do not have their titles if they have a lien on their vehicles . . . registration certificates, on the other hand, are usually much easier to produce since most motorists have it on their persons or in their cars."

Two Escanabans In Honors Unit

EAST LANSING — More than 250 students have been accepted as new members in the Honors College at Michigan State University.

Honors College provides special academic programs for superior undergraduate students. All students who have a 3.5 (A-minus) all-university grade average in their freshman year are eligible for admission.

As a member of Honors College the student has many benefits. He may waive all normal course requirements. Working closely with his own faculty adviser, he is given the opportunity to develop his own program of study suited to his interests and abilities.

Each student of the college is in the academic upper five per cent of the student body.

Upper Peninsula students honored with admission include:

Joseph C. Rodman, son of Mrs. Lucile Rodman, 1109 S. 3rd Ave., business management; and Thomas B. Veder, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. T. Veder, 309 S. 6th St., pre-med, both of Escanaba.

Jane E. Granskog, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Granskog, Stephenson anthropology; Kay E. Blomquist, Iron Mountain; Lorel K. Anderson, Ishpeming; Kenneth R. Peterson, Crystal Falls.
